I would like to introduce my favorite newspaper today. It's called the New York Times.

I didn't start reading it until I was in high school and my mom moved to New York and so when I would visit her. I would read the paper. It has every section that normal newspapers have with international events and some local events happening in the States.

In addition, it has a wonderful travel section that has articles from all over the world which offers perspectives that you don't get in normal newspapers. On Sundays, it has a special supplement. It has a magazine that comes with it and my favorite article is in there. It's about the English language and it explains the history of words with an easy explanation.

I only read it once a week now because I don't have much time with work and all that. But when I do read it, I like to sit down at my computer while I have a nice cup of tea and take hours and hours to read the news from New York City as I think it's a fascinating city and I really wish that I can live there someday.

I also like seeing all the news about travel places that I might take vacations at in the future because they are places that I wouldn't even think about going, like Sri Lanka maybe or going to Bali.
