

An important lake in my hometown is called Da Jia Lake, it runs through my hometown _____ and an adjacent town called _____.

You see, it provides great help to farmers as it helps them to irrigate their crops and agricultural produces. For the reason that during summer time my hometown doesn't rain a lot and the climate can become quite acrid. The lake not only keeps the plants hydrated and alive, it also provided water a reliable water source to the people living around it.

What's more, there is a special kind of edible plant which looks like seaweed that grows under Da Jia Lake, which is quite abnormal to see. The locals would gather the seaweed-like plant and add it into soup and rice.

Da Jia River, is a very important river for us, as it benefits us in a lot of ways. However, the local factories have been dumping waste water into it, and I hope the local officials can do something about it.
