A gift I received for my ___th birthday was a black hoodie from a boutique brand called Givenchy.

It was given to me during my birthday night from my parents because they knew I'm a Givenchy lover. It's made out of great quality cotton and there were embroideries of the face of a tiger on each side of it. The eyes of the tiger were being stitched blue and the furs were yellow. It looks wild! I later found out, G – Dragon, a famous Korean pop star, wore the same exact tiger hoodie when he was holding a concert in China.

I tried it on and it fits me perfectly, the sleeves and collars fitted perfectly as if it was tailor-made. Also, I was working out every day so my body was in shape. I love the present because it was definitely a pricey one. Nothing from Givenchy is affordable, my friend once told me that.

Finally, I loved the gift! Not to mention it was a crossover collection/co-op design with a famous Japanese designer. So it's definitely a memorable gift that's worth collecting.
